The Pronunciation Guide offered below is from the September 2018 Guide to Aboriginal Organizations and Services in British Columbia. Please note there may be some variation from this version due to periodic updates that have occurred since then. For changes, please email: IRRinfo@gov.bc.ca.

This Guide contains aids to the pronunciation of communities and organizations listed in the Excel Database "Guide to Indigenous Organizations and Services in British Columbia" (Previously known as The Guide to Aboriginal Organizations and Services in British Columbia). The original Pronunciation Guide was created with input from First Nations and other Aboriginal organizations, as well as from the First Peoples' Cultural Council.

British Columbia has a vast wealth of First Nations languages and cultures. There are 7 distinct language families, completely unrelated to each other. Within these families there are 34 different First Nations languages and at least 93 different dialects (varieties) of those languages. Besides these 34 living languages, at least three languages which were spoken in British Columbia are now sleeping. All of these languages contain a rich inventory of sounds, many of which are not found in English.

When preparing this Guide, we asked representatives to help us understand how to pronounce the traditional name of their community or organization. The pronunciation equivalents we have developed here are meant as an introductory guide. The final authority on a pronunciation rests with the community. We encourage you to gain a first-hand understanding of how a name is pronounced by speaking directly with, and being guided by, representatives from each community.

Please note that many sounds in First Nations' languages do not occur in English and so cannot be expressed using the English writing system. Additionally, there are often multiple variations of a pronunciation based on dialectal and other differences. The pronunciations represented below come as close as possible to the correct pronunciation, while being restrained to the English alphabet. A few of the letter combinations below are used to represent specific sounds not found in English. These are:

"wh" represents a breathy 'wh' sound that is pronounced with friction in the throat. "thl" represents a breathy 'l' sound with friction in the mouth, similar to the l in 'athlete' "ts" at the beginning of a word sounds like the 'ts' in 'cats'

First Nation communities and organizations continue to adopt Indigenous names distinct from anglicized versions or non-indigenous names. You will also find we have included several names that are cross-referenced with traditional or alternative names in brackets that may not appear in the Excel database, but may continue to be used in communities.

For more information about First Nations' languages in British Columbia, please visit the First Peoples' Cultural Council's website (www.fpcc.ca), or the First Peoples' Language Map of B.C. (http://www.maps.fphlcc.ca).
